Death of Henry Pleasants. The death of Henry A. Pleasants, son of Alderman W. H. Pleasants, occurred shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning. He passed through severe suffering before release came, but remained conscious to the last. Henry, as he was called by nearly all who knew him, though young in years—
not yet having reached the twenty-ninih anniversary of his birthday—was a noble specimen of the Christian gentleman.
Early in life be gave his heart to his God. Only a few moments before he breathed his last he said, "All is clear before me.'
Thus he lived, and thus he died triumph antly. The beauty of his character always attracted friends, and no one who has re-cently left us will be more deeply lamented.

His mild and quiet demeanor and his manly character were prompted by a heart which had in it no sympathy for anything that was not upright and honorable—that did not accord with what he considered fair desks when the floor gave way. He was precipitated to the gallery beneath, sustain-ing a fracture of one or two of his ribs. ome thirteen years ago he had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, and the disease attacking the organism of his heart he lay hanging between life and death for many weeks. DETAILS OF A VILE CRIME.

Man Found Mangled on the Railroad Track, Killed Not by the Cars, but by Human Hands.

On the 14th of February, near Hungary station, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, the dead body of a colored man was found, so mangled by the wheels of the cars that it was not recognizable except by the cloth of the vest. By this it was discovered that the deceased was Daniel Miller. At first it was thought and just, and he became marked for his truthfulness and probity.

Henry when quite a lad was in the Capitol building at the time of the disaster, and was standing between two of the reporters' level that murder had been committed. lieve that murder had been committed. The wife of the dead man, Barbara Miller, and Charles Henry Lee were arrested. The relations of Lee and Barbara had been intimate. Lee came from Williams's mill, in Lunenburg county, and for a year or more had been living in Miller's house and working about on farms, and latterly on the Richmond and Alleghany railroad. THEY DENY IT.

At first accused denied all knowledge of how Daniel came to his end.

Barbara said to a Dispatch reporter the day after her arrest, "Nor, sir, I dunno nothing about how he was killed." She is of ginger-bread color, tall, straight, and thin almost as Sarah Bernhardt or Miss Fay. She is twenty-nine. Lee is twentytwo. He is tall, heavy, black, smooth-faced, and ugly. Deceased was about thur-ty-five, and on the evening of the murder had been to Richmond, and upon return-ing to his home found Lee there, and it is known had a quarrel with him. When the children woke up in the morning Daniel was gone, and Barbara was drying Lee's pants by the stove.

CONSCIENCE AT WORK.

Barbara ever since her imprisonment has been suffering great torture of mind. Tuesday she started to make a confession to Mr. Shaw, the jailer; that same night she did make it to Mr. Shaw and to Mr. Waddill, clerk of the court. Yesterday she reiterated to Mr. Shaw and to a representative of this paper, who was present by the kindness of Mr. Thomas, the Com-

THE CONFESSION.

Barbara's story as told yesterday was a follows: My name is Barbara Frances Miller. was born in the county of Hanover, and am aged twenty-nine years. I formerly belonged to Mr. Charles Larrie. I have six children-three boys and three girls; the oldest child is a girl of thirteen, and the youngest is two years old. My husband and I lived on Mr. Richard Evans's farm, in Henrico county, near Hungary station, on the Richwond and Fredericksburg railroad. We rented a house and piece of land of him. On the night of the 13th of February last my husband, whose name was Daniel Miller, Charles Henry Lee, myself, and the children slept in the Real Business-Talk About Gas.

The Committee on Light have instructed their chairman, John M. Higgins, Esq., to report to the next meeting of the Council an ordinance reducing the price of gas to $1.50 after the 1st of October, by which time the works can be remodelled and the gas manufactured at a reduced price.

The committee have also adonted a resonant to be and the children slept in the house. There are only two rooms in the house, and we all went to sleep in the one down stairs—myseff and husband on the let on the floor with Henry. Before going to bed my husband asked time the works can be remodelled and the gas manufactured at a reduced price.

The committee have also adonted a resonant to be at 9 o'clock. We were all on good terms. We went to bed at 9 o'clock. I overslept my

When Mr. Blackburn, the magistrate, arrested me he asked if I knew anything about my husband's death, and that if I did that I had better tell all that I knew about it, and if I did not it would go harder with me.

Letel him at that time that I did not

I told him at that time that I did not know anything about it. The reason that I made him that answer was because I was so much bothered in my mind that I did not know what to do. I would have told all about Charles Henry Lee killing my husband if I had never been arrested, for God knows I loved my husband.

A TRUTHFUL VOLUNTARY STATEMENT, What I have told is the truth as sure as I am a true born child of God, and what I am a true born child of God, and what I have said is voluntary on my part. Lee sent me word last night by a prisoner who brought me wood to kindle my fire with that I must not "go back" on him, and must not teli anybody about it. I cannot do him any good, because he took the last thing that I had; that was my poor husband, and God will be giorified at my telling the truth about the death of my husband, and I hope the people may be satisfied at my telling them all about it.

I started to make a full confession to Mr. Shaw, the jailer, on last Tuesday evening

Shaw, the jailer, on last Tuesday evening about dark when he was locking me up in the cell. I wanted to tell him about the killing of my husband, when he (Shaw) told me that if I had anything to tell him voluntarily that he would listen to it. I told him I would tell him, and I said that Lee killed my husband and that I did not see him kill him. I was very excited at the time, and Mr. Shaw asked me if Charles had killed my husband, and I said, "Yes." He then asked me if he killed him in the house or out of the house, and I told him that Charles killed him out of the house. The next question that Mr. Shaw asked me was, "What did Charles kill him with?" and I told him with an axe. Mr. Shaw then went out and told me that he would come back in a few minutes or next morning and hear the balance of my state

Mr. Shaw says that after having locked the prisoner up for the night he went to the clerk's office and found Mr. Samuel P. Waddill, the clerk of the County Court, and they together visited the prisoner, when she made the same statement in substance to them that she had made to this reporter.

Sallie Harris, the cook at the jail, say that Barbara eats very little; hardly enough to keep a child alive; and that sometimes she does not touch the food upon her plate, but that Charles eats every-thing carried to him, and when his plate omes out it is clean.

EXAMINATION.

The preliminary examination takes place Wednesday, March 7. Major W. F. C. Gregory is Lee's counsel. She has none. The County Court meets the second Monday, 12th March, and a special grand jury will probably be summoned to take cognizance of the case.

All the confessions have been voluntary Mr. Shaw at first refused to hear her, and Mr. Waddill only heard her after stating to her the grave consequences of her admis-sions. When the reporter visited her she was, by direction of the Common-wealth's Attorney, again cautioned. She yesterday wanted to make a confession to the Commonwealth's Attorney, but he declined to hear it.
